Ryenne N. Ogburn

A vertical rectangular area with a light beige top section, a thin purple middle section, and a light teal bottom section. The teal section contains the text: "medical history. He will begin his graduate studies at Villanova University in Fall 2012." At the bottom of the teal section, there are two horizontal lines: a thin white line and a thick dark red line.

I am Alvinette Patterson and I am from Queens, New York. I recently graduated from Anthropology and Sociology with a concentration in Applied and Clinical Sociology major and a minor in Women's and Gender Studies. Something interesting about me: I have produced The Vagina Monologues for two years and I have acted in The Monologues for three years. This past summer I spent three weeks conducting ethnographic research on the Paso, Texas - Juarez, Mexico border as part of a sponsored Women's and Gender Studies Borderland Cultural Immersion Experience. I was able to learn how gender, race, and nationality impacts immigration issues. This was a life-changing experience and has forever changed the way I view the world. I fervently protest that wants to bring change on campus and beyond, I always want to be part of them. I am currently applying to the Marriage and the Family Therapy graduate program so I can take the next step in becoming a Sex Educator.

Interior Design is a focused career major with competitive job search after graduation. Becoming a part of the QEP allowed for me to explore a different side of interior design and has opened up a new range of job opportunities. While focusing on assisted living facilities during my research, I have come to the understanding that design can be used to better the lives of older adults in the future. Not only is an interior designer uniquely qualified to create functional
